Timing

The time series of stock prices used in the paper runs from 5/18/2012 to 6/27/2013. Data was read from Yahoo Finance using the R package pdfetch. Code to do this import directly is contained in the file Supplementary_Code/Fetch_data.R, but the pre-imported data is called in the main source code for the paper.

Key dates in the Snowden event are:

- Initial leak of story on data collection: 2013-06-05
- Protests in Hong Kong: 2013-06-15
- Criminal complaint filed: 2013-06-22

Price series and returns

Plots of both prices and daily returns are provided below for all series used in the study. Daily returns are generally expected to be mean zero if the returns series are to be considered stationary. This is tested more formally in specifying the ARMA structure of the mean, but summary statistics of the Returns series show no evidence for the contrary:

Table 1: Summary statistics of daily returns
